So why would you use the FNF option instead of other payment methods on PayPal? One reason is that no fees are associated with sending money via Friends and Family. This can be especially beneficial when you need to transfer funds internationally or make regular payments to loved ones.

However, it's important to note that using the FNF option should only be done when sending money to people you know personally and trust. If there is any dispute or issue with the transaction, PayPal's buyer and seller protection policies may not apply.
